Description of Request

ODA's Animal Disease Diagnostic Laboratory uses reagents and products to perform tests for Ohio's poultry industry. In order to maintain the National Poultry Improvement Plan status (required by most states to import poultry) these tests must be completed in an accredited laboratory. In addition to the dog industry, ADDL now performs the Heartworm testing for veterinarians across the state. There has been a dramatic increase in the Zoetis DIROCHECK Heartworm Antigen kit now that the laboratory offers this service. ADDL utilizes Zoetis because their products meet the specifications and guidelines to maintain certification from AAVLD and OPA standards. All products ADDL uses from Zoetis have been quality checked and have been specifically included in our standard operating procedures. These products are sole source products from Zoetis. These test kits help the Animal Disease Diagnostic Laboratory with its mission to prevent and maintain a disease-free status for Ohio's livestock, poultry and domestic animals.
